165. Serious consideration is now being given by a number of heads of specialized agencies and bodies of the United Nations system, spearheaded by UNEP and Unesco, to developing and publishing on an annual or biennial basis an environmental statement addressed to heads of State or Government, bringing to their attention one of the major emerging global environmental problems and making proposals for addressing it. A feasibility study was prepared by Unesco and the issue was discussed by DOEM and the Administrative Committee on Co-ordination. The Director General of Unesco and the Executive Director of UNEP are working together closely on this subject. The joint statements on the environment would have the following attributes:
